Active work was started this morning and will be continued five days of each week. A number of the Gettysburg school teachers are in attendance while most of the remainder are from the county. The present enrollment will, it is expected, be increased, within the next week. The faculty of the Gettysburg Summer School is as follows:

BOY HELD AS FORGER

David H. Wolff, aged 14, son of Daniel Wolff, of Beartown, is in jail at Chambersburg charged with forgery, and admits the crime.

The boy on Saturday about 5.30 p. m. went to Silvers grocery store in Waynesboro and after buying a number of goods offered in payment a check for $8.50 made to Carl Benchoff by George Zink, and endorsed in regular form by Benchoff. Mr. Silvers saw at once that the penmanship was the same and keeping the check started to phone for the police but the lad walked out. Reaching Chief Staley Mr. Silvers told him of the occurrence and hurrying down town pointed out Wolff who was arrested.

He acknowledged the whole affair and explained his making of the check by saying that he had seen one made out to his brother some days ago.

Miss Fannie Beard becomes Bride of Arthur W. Wagner, of Harrisburg. Well Known Reciter is Married.

WAGNER--BEARD

At noon today Miss Fannie C. Beard, of North Washington street, and Arthur W. Wagner, of Harrisburg, were married at the home of the bride by her brother-in-law, Rev. C. S. Brewer, of Buckley Illinois, assisted by the Rev. L. Dow Ott, of Gettysburg.

The ceremony was performed in the parlor which was prettily decorated with foliage and laurel. The dining room adjoining was decorated with daisies. Miss Hyacinth Beard played the wedding march.

The bride wore white satin, made on train, with a veil caught with orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor, Miss Virginia Beard, wore a yellow satin gown with train, and carried lilies of the valley. Miss Jessie Beard, the flower girl, wore white and carried daisies. The best man was Emory Wagner of Harrisburg, a brother of the groom.

They left at four o'clock on a trip to Niagara Falls, the Hudson River and Ashbury Park. Upon their return they will reside in a newly furnished home, 1425 North street, Harrisburg, where Mr. Wagner is a city mail carrier. A large number of handsome gifts will contribute to the beauty of their Harrisburg home.

HENRY--HERRING

Dr. W. P. G. Henry, Everett, Bedford county and Miss Bertha Blayne Herring, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. E. S. Herring, of York, were married Saturday morning June 15 at 8 o'clock at the bride's home.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. E. S. Herring, father of the bride, who has been a member of the faculty of the Harrisburg high school and is a well known reader. She has many friends in this county.

FOR THE ONION WORM

It appears that the onion plants are unusually badly attacked this year by maggots or worms which feed within them, and cause them suddenly to wilt and die. A prominent horticulturist in the eastern part of Pennsylvania wrote to State Zoologist Surface, at Harrisburg, asking what to do for this pest, and received the following reply which will be read with interest by all persons who have gardens:

"The insect attacking your onions is, no doubt, the Onion Maggot or Onion Worm. It is best prevented by pouring a quart of kerosene oil into a half bushel of sand and stirring it well and scattering it over the ground around the plants at the time the onions are set out. This repels the fly which lays the egg from which the maggot hatches. There is no remedy after the onion is once infested. The addition of a little turpentine to the kerosene also increases the repelling value. The sand can be scattered very thinly indeed quite near to the newly set plants or onion sets."

COMMENCE CANNING PEAS

The canning establishment of the D. E. Winebrenner Co., Hanover, is now a scene of great activity. The summer work has commenced with the canning of peas. The crop of peas is said to be an unusually large one—a larger acreage having been planted and the weather having been quite favorable. This firm is canning from 40,000 to 50,000 cans of this product daily.

CONVENTION BEGINS WORK IN CHICAGO

Test of Strength to Come Early.

READY TO FIGHT T. R.

Taft Forces to Oppose Any Roosevelt Plan.

CLAIMS OF BOTH SIDES

Each Faction Declares Their Candidate Will Win.

Chicago, June 18.—The Republican national convention, which will nominate candidates for president and vice president, was called to order in the Coliseum this afternoon by Victor Rosewater, of Nebraska, acting chairman of the national committee.

Mr. Rosewater read the call for the convention and was followed by a prayer by a Chicago minister. Mr. Rosewater then, as the representative of the national committee, recommended on behalf of the committee that Senator Root, of New York, be made temporary chairman. Cheers from the Taft delegates followed this announcement.

When order was restored a Roosevelt delegate moved that the name of Senator Borah, of Idaho, be substituted for that of Root. This brought cheers from the Roosevelt delegates and a roll call was demanded. Great confusion followed, as this vote is expected to show the strength of the rival factions.

The streets about the hall were crowded from early morning with Taft and Roosevelt shouters and a small army of policemen was required to keep a passage open to the entrance to the Coliseum to allow the delegates and spectators holding tickets to enter the building.

The Taft men say Roosevelt's followers will attempt to unseat the contested delegates on roll call.

California to Start Fight.

The fight is to begin, according to current talk, when the state of California is called.

Governor Johnson has insisted that he would vote the delegation as a unit for Roosevelt, although there are two Taft men in the delegation.

When the chairman of the California delegation was handed the tickets for the delegation by George Knight, national committeeman for the state, he gave the twenty-four Roosevelt men their seat tickets, but refused to give the two Taft men in the state their seat tickets and their badges by which they could gain access to the convention.

The same process was gone through in the seating of Oklahoma, and thus two of the twenty delegates for the state accredited to Taft could not get into the convention.

When the national committee ascertained that the Roosevelt state chairmen of California and Oklahoma had not given the Taft delegates of those two states their tickets to the convention the national committee ordered new tickets printed for the delegates and so the Taft men will be on hand. J. C. Styles, S. S. Minsey and J. H. Boone, whom the Roosevelt men alleged had joined Grier in the Georgia revolt from the Taft column repudiated the assertions of Grier.

Following this up, J. E. Wood, national delegate-at-large from Kentucky, issued a statement in which he said that a majority of the colored delegations from the south to the Republican national convention represent the best element of the race, and the colored race throughout the country resented the imputation that these delegates were for sale.

Louisiana also held a meeting and agreed to vote solidly for Taft and Senator Root as temporary chairman of the convention.

The Oklahoma delegation at a caucus by a vote of 18 to 2 refused to adopt a resolution to bind its members to support the nominee of the convention. The caucus also threw out the two delegates from the Third district who had been seated by the national committee and seated the Roosevelt contestants.

Dixon Claims T. R. Majority.

Senator Dixon issued an authorized interview, in which he said among other things:

"The last check we made showed that Colonel Roosevelt ought to have in the convention about forty-two majority. He expressed the belief that Colonel Roosevelt would have thirteen from South Carolina, and said nine, signed a letter to Colonel Roosevelt to that effect. He further stated that the flop to Roosevelt in the Georgia delegation now amounted to nine, and he thought there would be defections to Roosevelt in two or three states about which they would have statements later. 'There is not a southern state.'

he added, "that has not been broken into by the Roosevelt forces."

Director McKinley and Senator Penrose declared emphatically that Mr. Taft will control the convention and be nominated by a good majority. They deny desertions and say the southern delegations are holding firm.

The truth is that neither Roosevelt nor any of his lieutenants has any accurate count upon the delegates. Many a careless word spoken in jest by a Taft or uninstructed delegate has been written down in the Roosevelt books as a pledge. Many a good natured assertion that "Teddy is a good fellow and would make a good president," has caused the delegate who uttered it to be availed under Roosevelt importunities and to be included in the Roosevelt claims.

It will take the milling that will come upon the threshing floor of the convention to separate the wheat of performance from the chaff of idle words. Flinn and Stubbs are discounting their own figures. Roosevelt has exhibited a disposition to accept all the claims of his headquarters at 10 per cent, and it is expected that his indignation, if he shall not speedily master the situation after the convention opens, will be a terrific torrent.

ROOSEVELT'S LAST APPEAL

Bitterly Assails Taft and the National Committee.

Chicago, June 18.—Theodore Roosevelt ended a most strenuous day with a mass meeting at the Auditorium which has seldom been matched for enthusiasm in the history of Chicago many political demonstrations.

Ten thousand applications for tickets were made for the hall, which will only hold 4200, and soon after the doors were opened every seat had been taken. For an hour the crowd was entertained with an organ recital, and when the colonel appeared on the platform the cheering broke loose like pandemonium.

Round after round of applause was given, hats were thrown in the air and men yelled themselves hoarse.

When the great crowd finally quieted down Colonel Roosevelt was introduced by Alexander H. Revell, and there was another frantic outburst of cheering. Colonel Roosevelt was the only speaker, and in his remarks he bitterly assailed President Taft and the work of the Republican national committee in deciding contests in the president's interests and argued in justification of the course the progressives have pursued in the campaign.

Among other things he said: "If the methods adopted by the national committee are approved by the convention which is about to assemble a great crime will have been committed. The triumph of such proceedings at the moment would mean the wreck of the Republican party; and if such proceedings become habitual, it would mean the wreck of popular government."

"When in February last I made up my mind that it was my duty to enter this fight, it was after long and careful deliberation."

"I had become convinced that Mr. Taft had definitely and completely abandoned the cause of the people and had surrendered himself wholly to the bidding of the professional political bosses and of the great privileged interests standing behind him."

"The overwhelming majority of the Republican progressives have declared for me. It has become clear beyond shadow of doubt that if I had not made the progressive fight it would have completely broken down and there would have been no substantial opposition to the forces of reaction and of political crookedness."

"If this convention proves false to the cause of the people, if it records the will of the bosses, whether unbeaten, as in New York and Colorado, or beaten as in Massachusetts, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and Kansas, it will wreck the cause of democracy. It will be false to every principle of honor and justice."

ROOSEVELT GETS TICKETS

Colonel New Promptly Sends Him Ten For His Family.

Chicago, June 18.—Ex-President Roosevelt sent a courteous note to Colonel Harry S. New, chairman of the sub-committee on arrangement for the convention, stating that his family had no seats for the convention and asked for ten tickets. Colonel New promptly enclosed the ten tickets to Colonel Roosevelt.

It turns out that Colonel New has set aside these tickets all along for Colonel Roosevelt, ten of the best seats in the convention, as he has known for a month that Colonel Roosevelt would be present on this occasion. Indeed, Colonel New was in formed a month ago that Colonel Roosevelt had made reservations for himself and family at the Blackston and Congress hotels.

STORIES OF 28TH WISCONSIN

Regiment Had Many Interesting Experiences During War—Senator Davis Served as Lieutenant.

The Twenty-eighth Wisconsin was composed almost wholly of Waukegan and Walworth county men. Large numbers were recruited from among the farmer boys, though every village in the counties made generous contributions. The regiment completed its organization at Camp Washburn, Milwaukee, and was mustered in about the middle of October, 1862.

Dr. James M. Lewis of Oconomowoc was the first colonel, writes Col. J. A. Watrous, U. S. A., in the Milwaukee Sentinel.

On December 20, 1862, the regiment left Milwaukee with orders to report at Columbus, Ky., reaching there two days later. It was at once sent to Union City, where it was expected it would be called upon to go into a fight, but returned to Columbus the next day, the enemy having taken its flight. Early in January, 1863, it went to Helena, Ark., where it became a part of the Thirteenth army corps, a member of the Second brigade. From this point it went on transports to St. Charles, Ark., where, with a force of cavalry and artillery, all under command of Colonel Lewis, it took charge of the place. It returned to Helena two weeks later and remained in camp there until February 24. The regiment did much extra duty, going on various raids, and was occupied for a long time in the hard work of constructing fortifications. Once when the Twenty-eighth went to the support of an Indiana regiment it was under the fire of a gunboat and a Confederate battery the better part of a day. It participated in the unsuccessful attack on Fort Pemberton, and after that returned to Helena. In a raid accompanied by cavalry and a section of artillery, commanded by Colonel Lewis, they met and drove back a large force of cavalry and destroyed an immense quantity of stores, returning to camp without loss. From April 8, 1863, until July 4, the regiment was in camp at Helena, and gave invaluable aid in fortifying the place. It also during that time participated in an expedition in the direction of Cotton Point, Ark.

Gen. Frederick Salomon, who had entered the service as colonel of the Ninth Wisconsin, was placed in command of the force at Helena, a fact which was very pleasing to the Twenty-eighth Wisconsin. General Salomon was entitled to credit for the thorough preparation that had been made for the battle which was fought on July 4. His small force, about 3,500 men, was so well protected and the town was so substantially fortified that he held it in spite of the desperate fight of an army of 15,000 Confederates and defeated the enemy, inflicting great slaughter. The Twenty-eighth received praise from the general for its brave and splendid conduct. It occupied an important position and held it against great odds.

In August, 1863, the Twenty-eighth accompanied Gen. Fred Steele on the Little Rock campaign. Colonel Lewis had command of the Second brigade and Lieutenant Colonel Gray commanded the regiment. It remained at Little Rock from September 10 until October 16 and then participated in the race after General Mansueti's force, but turned back after reaching Rockport. At about this time the Twenty-eighth was ordered to join the command of Colonel Powell Clayton at Pine Bluff. Colonel Clayton, who afterward became a brigadier general, was so well pleased with the Wisconsin regiment that he kept it with him as long as possible and has never forgotten his association with it. Colonel Gray was in command of the post at Pine Bluff for some time. Six companies of the regiment participated in an expedition to destroy a bridge on the Saline river in March, 1864. While on guard at that point it was attacked by a Confederate force of 1,500. The Twenty-eighth men deployed and held the large force at bay until the balance of the Unionists were in position. The Confederates were repulsed with great loss.

Tactless of Him. The Brute—What are you thinking of, Mary? Mary—I am dreaming of my youth. The Brute—I thought you had a far away look in your eyes.

There is nothing real about that melodrama. Then you didn't see the real money they are taking in at the box office.

POSITION OF BATTEES

No Two Players Handle Themselves Alike at Plate.

Hal Chase Assumes Seemingly Attitude of Indifference and Carelessness—Swings Bat With Good Deal of Snap, but Not Hard.

Similar results in batting—good results that is, are obtained from many different styles. Good form, poor form and no form at all get there with the bat, and each contributes its quota to the 300 division. This thing of "form" at the bat is largely a shibboleth based on nothing. In other sports "form" may be more or less of a necessity, at any rate certain branches of sport lay much stress on "form," possibly laying more on the niceties of physical poise than there is occasion for. Maybe there is "form" in baseball, but if many different exponents of hard hitting go about getting good results in quite different ways as to adjustment of body, feet, arms and so forth it is not clear just where any regulation form comes in.

No two batters handle themselves exactly alike at the plate, of course, but methods differ so widely as to make each man's "form" his own. Styles can be corrected to advantage; that is, faults overcome and changes made suitable to the individual, but even then there is no approach to a standard. A few cases will serve to show how different batters maintain a way among the batting elect, the 300 class with a wide dissimilarity of method.

Take Hal Chase, for instance. Many is the spectator who says he doesn't see how Chase hits the ball. Yet he does hit it, keeps on hitting it and always has been a first-class batter. The batter who steps away from the plate is notoriously a poor hitter, but while Chase doesn't step or pull away he is fidgety with his feet and suggests that he is about to step away.

Seemingly careless and indifferent, he really is watching the pitcher's every movement as well as the whole layout, and no man can hit better with a base runner. His attitude is anything but menacing, indeed contains a hint of timidity, which really doesn't exist, but with loose wrist and arm action he can adapt himself to any sort of a pitched ball hittable. He used to be weak on a low curve outside the plate, but got over that and now is a free hitter. If he wants to hit he'll hit at anything, like Lajoie and Wagner, and he's liable to hit anything. He doesn't swing hard in the sense of having a long swing, but swings with a good deal of snap. His eye and arm do the work without much use of the body in adding force to the drive.

Obedient Injunctions.

"My wife told me yesterday when I came in town to send out a plain cook."

"Did you get one?"

"Did I? I got one whose face is plain enough to stop all the cooks on the block."

The Answer Was Easy. Old Roxleigh—You must be less extravagant. How do you expect to get along when you are my age?

His Son—Well, father, I suppose by that time I shall have your money to get along with.

Genghis Khan, the Scourge of the East

A SLANT-EYED, high-cheeked, boned Tartar boy—born on the banks of the Mongolian River Onon in 1162—formed a modest plan of conquering the world. He had a small GENGHIS KHAN enough start for such a venture. For his father was only a petty Tartar chief, ruling a mere handful of families. But the boy had boundless ambition, was a natural ruler of men, was held back by no qualms of conscience—for he seems to have been quite conscienceless—and had a natural cruelty of nature that overrode all obstacles. These customs and the leadership of his own little tribe were the sole backing he had for his mighty enterprise.

The lad was known as Temudjin ("the Wise"). He was thirteen when his father died. He found himself at the head of a rebellious clan that wanted to depose him for an older, wiser chief. Temudjin thrashed his foes, then thrashed and annexed neighboring tribes. He soon was ruler of a strong federation. A still stronger collection of tribes opposed him. He made friends with the Great Khan of the Keraites Tartars, by whose aid he beat his own enemies. He then married the Great Khan's daughter.

Trouble soon sprang up between Temudjin and his father-in-law. The young man defeated and slew the Great Khan, who had been his benefactor, and then made himself master of the whole region. His next step was to hunt up a Shaman (prophet of wisdom), who, by working on the Tartars' superstitions, made them regard Temudjin as a sort of god. The Shaman also prophesied that Temudjin would conquer the entire world.

The Tartar chief now abandoned his early name of Temudjin and took the title "Genghis Khan" (meaning "Greatest Chief"). He made a code of wise laws for his followers and changed their race name to "Mongol" ("Brave"). Then he set out on his task of world conquest.

First annexing all Tartary, he marched on China, crossed the Chinese Wall and advanced into the heart of the country. It was during this expedition that he first let loose to the full his love of barbarous cruelty and won the dread nickname "The Scourge of the East." He plundered and utterly destroyed ninety-six cities, besides a countless number of towns and villages. The inhabitants were put to death—men and women alike—with unspeakable tortures.

On a second campaign in China Genghis Khan in 1215 captured Peking and burned it to the ground after stealing everything that could be carried away. Thence he invaded Persia. The city of Bokhara was known as "the center of science." It held wondrous inventions and the Orient's rarest treasures of art and literature. Genghis Khan cared no more for such things or for the world's real progress than a mad dog cares for the rose hedge he breaks through. Bokhara, with its wondrous objects of art and learning, was destroyed. The entire country was devastated, and with the fall of its cities their priceless treasures of Oriental science went up in smoke. Millions of people were slain or carried into slavery.

Iran, Astrakhan and Southern Russia next fell prey to the merciless Khan. Practically all of China was enslaved. So were Corea and the countries northwest of India.

The Turks were driven out of their Asian fastnesses and chased across into Europe. (It was then that the Turks first settled in Eastern Europe, where later they were to wreak havoc on Christian nations.)

Wider and wider spread the conquests of Genghis Khan. At the capture of Herat alone he is said to have massacred 1,600,000 people. No mortal power could check his advance. The prophecy seemed about to come true. The more so when he won the mighty kingdom of Tangut by annihilating an army 30,000 strong in a fierce battle waged on the ice of a frozen lake.

Genghis Khan was now master of all the territory from the China Sea to the River Dnieper. He set forth on a fresh tour of slaughter in the summer of 1227. But astronomers told him that the stars at that time spelt disaster for him. So the superstitious Khan turned back in haste, to wait until the planets should promise him better luck. On the way homeward he fell ill and died.

Even in death his cruelties did not cease. The armed escort of his funeral procession slaughtered every one whom they met along the route to the place of burial, and nearly a thousand beautiful girls were slain, as a sacrifice, on the tomb.

Thus perished Genghis Khan—genius, born ruler and—wholesale blackguard.

FLINN NOW IN PENROSE'S PLACE

Penna. Delegation Elect Him
National Committeeman.

OTHER SELECTIONS MADE

Delegates Caucus and Name Representatives For Committees — Taft Loses Two From Lancaster.

Chicago, June 18.—The Pennsylvania delegation to the national Republican convention completed the humilation of United States Senator Penrose by depositing him as the state's representative on the party's national committee.

At the same time it voted to elect to that position William Flinn the man who more than any other was responsible for Penrose's defeat at the recent primary election. Flinn, who obtained his present importance to the Republican party in the Keystone State while enacting the role of reform, will not take position until after the close of the convention nor will Penrose relinquish his seat in the committee until that time.

The caucus steering committee named to select the representatives of Pennsylvania on the various committees was appointed as follows: Guy B. Mayo, of McKean county; Thomas F. Edwards, Schuylkill; Robert K. Young, of Tioga; John J. Gheen, of Chester, and William Hackenberg, of Northumberland county. This committee, after conferring with E. A. Var Valkenberg, returned to the caucus and reported the following recommendations, which were unanimously adopted:

Committee on credentials—Lex N. Mitchell, Jefferson county.

Rules—William H. Colmena, Allegheny.

Resolutions—William Draper Lewis Philadelphia.

Permanent organization—H. H. Gilkyson, Chester county.

Honorary vice president—Dana R. Stephenson, Bradford county.

The report that William W. Gries and William H. Keller, both of Lancaster county, would not vote in the convention for either President Taft or Colonel Roosevelt on the first ballot, but for a compromise candidate preferably Justice Hughes or Robert T. Lincoln, was confirmed.

Gries and Keller were counted as Taft delegates at the time of their election, but their "defection" had been discounted for some days. Both were present at the day's caucus and declared when questioned that they would vote for a third man. They said that they had not decided, as had been said, to vote for Senator Cummins, of Iowa, their preference being for Lincoln or Hughes.

Incidentally the caucus, which was attended by practically all of the Roosevelt delegates and alternates were on hand, as well as several Taft delegates, although the attendance of the latter was not construed as an intention on their part to vote for Colonel Roosevelt.

TAFT VETOES BILL THAT OUSTS GEN. WOOD

Disapproves Army Appropriation Measure.

Washington, June 18.—The president vetoed the army appropriation bill. He returned the bill to congress with a message indicating his disapproval of the legislation which would oust Major General Wood from the office of chief of staff on March 4 next.

In his message the president said: "The army of the United States is far too vital an institution to the people of this country to be made the victim of hasty or imperfect theories of legislation. As was pointed out by the chairman of the senate military committee, it is well known that the war college and the general staff have been for many months engaged upon a comprehensive plan of army reorganization."

"At the present time, therefore, it is especially inappropriate in my opinion to force upon the statute books legislation enacted without the usual deliberation and care. I cannot conscientiously surrender the responsibility in shaping such laws with which am vested under the constitution, therefore return to your honorable body without my approval the said bill."

The president did not veto the bill because of any fault in its appropriations, but because of legislation which congress had added. He declared his practice of attaching legislation to an appropriation with the intent of depriving the president of his constitutional power of veto could not be defended.

Rival in Points.

Certain cities overshadow all rivals in certain departments of play. Greater New York, as a starter, is well fixed for first onsemen, with Chase, Daubert and Merkle. Boston can boast of two stanch outfields in Speaker, Hooper and Lewis of the Red Sox, with Miller, Campbell and Jackson of the Braves. Chicago has always stood high with catchers in Sullivan and Archer. And Philadelphia has the Athletics.

THAW'S ALIENIST OPPOSES FREEDOM

Would Keep Patient in an Asylum.

White Plains, N. Y., June 18.—Harry K. Thaw, own alienist, Dr. Roy L. Leak, subpoenaed by Thaw's lawyer to aid in his legal fight for freedom, assisted the state in its effort to keep the slayer of Stanford White in the Matteawan asylum.

Dr. Leak, who is second physician at the asylum, testified before Justice Keogh in the superior court that in his opinion Thaw was "constitutionally inferior."

"Can he recover from that?" asked William T. Jerome, former district attorney of New York, who is attorney for the state.

"No."

"Are such persons apt to do strange things when under stress or under the influence of liquor?"

"They may."

"And when they drink they resort to acts of violence, do they not?"

"In a great many cases."

Dr. H. Ernest Schmidt, an alienist of White Plains, and William Van Ames, a lawyer of Newburgh, the other witnesses examined, testified that they thought Thaw rational.

Dr. William A. White, an alienist in charge of the United States government hospital at Washington, testified that he had examined Thaw or three occasions recently, the last being last Thursday, when he spent three hours with him. The witness added that he had found no evidence of paranoia.

"Thaw is not insane," he said, "and it would not be unsafe to the community to liberate him now."

Suicide in Phone Booth.

Hoboken, N. J., June 18.—Many persons in a crowd at the Delaware, Lackawanna & Western railroad terminal saw Edward Loughlan, of East Orange, commit suicide by shooting in a telephone booth. He had called some one on the wire, and after talking for several minutes so loudly that those outside overheard, he finally exclaimed: "That ends it. Listen and you'll know why." The man drew a revolver from his pocket and before anyone could reach him he had killed himself with a bullet through the temple.

Overlooked.

Two lawyers before a probate judge recently got into a wrangle. At last one of the disputants, losing control over his emotions, exclaimed to his opponent:

"Order, order!" said the judge gravely. "You seem to forget that I am in the room."

An Economist.

A certain lighthouse keeper, newly appointed to a post off the west coast of Cornwall, was told by the coast-guard officer that complaints were made against him.

"For what?" was the inquiry.

"Why," replied the officer, "they say that your lights do not burn after twelve o'clock at night."

"Well," was the reply, "I know they don't, for I put 'em out myself. I thought all the vessels had got in by that time, and I wanted to save the oil."

THREE DROWNED AS BOAT UPSETS

Four Others Rescued Unconscious Below Atlantic City.

LIFE GUARDS SAVED THEM

Motor Launch is Capsized by Big Comber and Rigging Drags Victims to Death.

Atlantic City, N. J., June 18.—Three men were drowned and four companions were brought ashore unconscious by life guards at Island Beach station, thirty miles south of here. All are residents of that section.

The accident was caused by the engine in their power boat going bad while a mile off shore. The drowned are: Leroy Larson, thirty years old; Holmer Bergen, thirty-two years old; Peter Olson, twenty-seven years old. The saved are: Captain Fred Swanson, forty-five years old; William Wilmer, twenty years old, and two others whose names are not yet obtainable.

According to Swanson, the party started out in a big launch for a fishing trip. They reached a bar a mile from the beach when rough water gave them trouble. Fighting hard, they tried to avoid shipping the waves.

Finally a huge comber tumbled upon them, putting the engine out of commission. Then others piled over the side and the launch capsized and they were tossed out. Larson and Bergen were tangled in some of the equipment and the others went to their assistance. In their desperate effort to free the doomed men the rest of the party finally became exhausted and started to go under.

At this point Swanson set the example for his guests by fastening a line about his waist and returning to the trapped pair. The others tried to follow him, but they were too far gone. Olson finally managed to swim weakly to Swanson's assistance, but became entangled in the equipment.

Swanson became unconscious, and the two he had been working to save and Olson disappeared beneath the water. The federal guards in the mean time were trying to reach the drowning men. When they got to the side of the boat they were just in time to get Swanson, Wilmer and two others whose names could not be ascertained in the confusion.

It was seen that the others were dead, but they were cut loose by the surfmen and all taken ashore. The three who had been under water for fully ten minutes before the guard arrived showed no signs of life, although everything was done to revive them. The others responded to resuscitation methods after a half hour's grueling work on the part of their rescuers.

The bodies of the three are held at the station, pending the recovery of the four whose lives were saved.

BEEF TRUST TO DISSOLVE

Will Act Voluntarily and Civil Suit Will Be Held in Abeyance.

Washington, June 18.—Attorney General Wickham was advised that the National Packing company would be voluntarily dissolved by the beef packers by Aug. 1.

In view of this action, Mr. Wickham announced that the government would hold in abeyance the civil suit which it proposed to bring against the company to compel its disintegration.

Chicago Collecting Pickpockets.

Chicago, June 18.—Fifteen alleged pickpockets were rounded up at the central police station. They were arrested in street cars and in public places by detectives looking for "convention crooks" attracted by the opportunity for thieving.

Papa's Politics

Elsa Dryden opened the library door. Then she raised her hand suddenly to wave Kent Bane, who was behind her, back into the hall. She held the door half open for a moment and then softly closed it. Her face, which a moment before had been flushed and laughing, was very white.

"What is it?" Bane asked. "It is nothing—nothing. Come in here." She led him into a room across the hall. "Father has guests in the library."

"Elsa, what is it? Is there anything I can do to help you? You know that what hurts you must also make me unhappy."

"I can't tell you about this, Kent. It is something that—that—Oh, I can't speak of it to you—to you, of all people. Let us talk about something else."

When Horace Dryden, after accompanying his guests to the door, returned to the library he found his daughter waiting for him.

"Father, will Colonel Bane lose his position as president of the canal board?"

Mr. Dryden stared at her. "Yes," he said, coolly, "he will."

"But, father, have you no thought for Kent and for me?"

Mr. Dryden slowly lighted a cigar. "Why should I consider Kent?" he asked deliberately. "What is Kent to me? And what," he added, after a significant silence, "what is Kent to you?"

"Kent is—he is—" Her eyes dropped before her father's keen ones, and the words were almost inaudible.

"Kent is not your affianced husband. There is no engagement between you two."

"But, father, I care—a great deal for him, and he—I believe he cares for me."

"How did you know that his father is to be ousted from the canal board?"

"Tonight I opened the library door. I did not know there was any one in the room. You and the governor and Mr. Green were there. I heard you say, 'Well, out Bane from his present place. It is the best plan.'"

"Elsa," the curtness was gone from Mr. Dryden's voice, and he spoke gently. "If you and Kent really care for each other, my action in dismissing his father will not separate you. But the canal board shall leave the canal board. You can't expect me to allow the friendship between you and Kent, a friendship which is not an engagement, to interfere in the plans of a governor and his state machine."

The newspapers announced the resignation of Colonel Bane from the presidency of the canal board and the appointment of Mr. Greene in his place.

A few hours after the announcement Kent Bane went to the Dryden home.

"Elsa," he exclaimed as she came into the room. "I'm the happiest man in the world."

"Happy, Kent? And your father?"

"Father is quite unconcerned about his retirement. He has plenty of money and many other interests. His retirement affects me more than it does him. It makes me free to tell you how much I love you and to ask you to marry me. I could not do so while my father held his position through your father's influence."

Elsa stepped away from him. "Why couldn't you?"

"Because the whole world would have said that I was marrying you in order to retain Mr. Dryden's influence for my father."

"And now, when people can no longer say that, you are ready to marry?"

You loved me so little that you allowed your pride—your silly vanity—to stand between us. I don't want the insignificant, poor little girl you offer—your love."

A week later Mr. Dryden handed a paper across the breakfast table to his daughter. It contained the announcement of Colonel Bane's appointment to one of the highest offices in the gift of the governor.

"What does it mean, father?"

"When we decided to oust Bane from the canal board we also decided to give him something better. I asked him not to mention the new appointment to any one, not even to his son. I thought that if Kent's love for you could be shattered by my dismissal of his father it should have the chance. But your pride took fire at the boy's conduct and—"

Kent Bane strode into the room. He paid no attention to Mr. Dryden. He caught Elsa's hands, crushing the newspaper she held.

"I've come back to you again," he said, before she could speak. "You showed me that I had acted like a weak cad. I am thoroughly ashamed of my attitude. Won't you forgive the pride—silly vanity you called it—that stood between us?"

A chair scraped on the floor as Mr. Dryden rose from his seat. "I wish he said to the two radiant persons, who had evidently forgotten his presence, 'that you foolish children would keep your love affairs out of your father's political plans. We can't and won't rule the state to accommodate the notions of you two. But we will say, 'Bless you, children.'"

WE EAT POISONS EVERY DAY Even Common Salt, in Large Quantities, is Sure Death, and So is Salt-peter.

When the doctor told me he was prescribing prussic acid for the pain in my stomach, I said I would rather keep the pain than take such a poison.

"You need not have the slightest fear," he assured me. "Why, you eat poisons every day. When the Chinese want to commit suicide, one of their favorite plans is to take half a cup of salt."

"Common salt?"

"Yes. In large quantities common salt is a violent irritant. It sets up severe inflammation of the stomach, and kills as surely as arsenic."

"Salt-peter, that colors bacon and corned beef an attractive red, is a powerful poison. One ounce has killed a person in three hours. Many people have been poisoned by this salt."

"You must know that your Christmas pudding and the icing of your wedding cake are incomplete unless flavored with bitter almonds. I am not sure how many bitter almonds it takes to kill a man, but they contain a good deal of this prussic acid that you object to."

"Oxalic acid, with which foolish people so often commit suicide, is the salt which gives rhubarb and sorrel their pleasant flavor. It is a violent irritant and dreadfully painful poison."

"Need I tell you that caffeine, the exhilarating principle of coffee and tea, is a poison?"

"In nearly all our condiments we eat poison. The oils of nutmeg, cloves, black pepper, cinnamon, peppermint, caraway, horseradish, thyme, etc., are all poisonous in large doses. Black pepper contains a fiery, volatile oil, capable of burning a hole in your stomach, if it was not moved on, while its pipeline is a sure poison. Cayenne pepper, or capsicum, is still more irritant."

"But, besides poisons which we take from choice, there are others which it is impossible to avoid swallowing in these days of complex feeding. Arsenic is a very common ingredient in beer, jam, sweets, etc., made with glucose. Fortunately, the liver acts more or less as a filter and saves us from serious consequences."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

HINTS FOR NEEDLEWOMAN

Little Suggestions That Will Prove Helpful to Woman Who Does Her Own Sewing.

When your thread persists in knotting, unthread your needle and thread it from the other end. It will cease to trouble you.

In selecting draperies for windows do not neglect to look at the fascinating cotton goods in the dress departments. The mercerized fabrics as well as the volles lend themselves admirably to this purpose.

To save the top of a stocking from being torn out by the supporters' fastening, attach a small brass ring to a piece of tape and sew the tape to the stockings. Clasp the supporters through the rings, using rings that will allow them to slip through.

Make generous seams under and over the arms, and generous hems on the closing at the back. Make the buttonholes in a fly, and thus the goods is not damaged, and the waist can be widened as well as lengthened if necessary. Have plenty of tucks in the little skirts, and turn in the ends of the belt, stitching with a fine needle and a fine thread.
